

Neuroscience Research Reading and Clinical Discussion Group 2009-2010

Outline

This series of seminars is organised as continuing professional development for child psychotherapists, arts psychotherapists and other professionals, working with adults or with children. It is led by Margaret Wilkinson, Jungian Analyst and author of 'Coming into Mind: The Mind-Brain Relationship: A Jungian Clinical Perspective' published by Routledge in 2006 and the forthcoming "Changing Minds in Therapy: Emotion, Attachment, Trauma, and Neurobiology" Norton 2010.

Learning Outcomes

The seminars introduce a selection of cutting-edge research papers and books concerning the neurobiology of emotion, attachment and trauma and its relevance to clinical practice across the age range. Members may bring clinical material for discussion within the group setting so that clinical work can be considered in the light of the psychoanalytic response to this new research from the field of neuroscience.
