Exploring authority and leadership at work

Using the Tavistock Model of Understanding the Dynamics of Work and Organisations

Course Outline

As part of NSCAP's commitment to professional and personal development we are pleased to offer a series of seminars focussed on the experience of working and leading in organisations. The seminars are an opportunity to develop a deeper understanding of work, organisations, and the individuals and groups within them. The distinctive feature of our approach is the attention given to the 'beneath the surface' emotions and dynamics that impact on individual and organisational functioning.

The seminars explore how a self-reflective stance can enable participants to work better in complex situations.

They draw on the internationally recognised Tavistock model of understanding organisations which brings together learning from systems theory, psychodynamics and group relations training. The theory is applied to current trends in organisational development using examples from the course leader and participants.

On request, we can run bespoke courses for specific teams or services.

Learning Outcomes

Leaders exist at all levels in an organisation. Drawing predominantly on psychoanalytic and systemic concepts, these seminars address the complex factors that influence the ability to lead and to take up positions of authority. The seminars provide participants with a greater understanding of themselves in role and the capacity to understand the processes that affect functioning in organisations and teams. The seminars will be of interest to both experienced managers and to those moving into these roles, and also to consultants working with leaders.

The concepts used in this course are a development of Series A which is why completion of that course is normally a prerequisite. However, if prospective participants have sufficient knowledge of psychodynamic or systems concepts and want to explore these in a seminar setting then they should apply. The seminars would be a good CPD option for people who have completed the MA Consultation and the Organisation at the Tavistock Clinic or for some may provide a route into that programme. It will also be a good course for anyone wanting to improve their current practice as a manager or those thinking about taking the next step into a management role.

Certificates for CPD will be issued

Who should attend

These seminars are accessible to a broad range of professionals, managers and consultants working across the public, the independent and voluntary sectors. The focus of the seminars is on dynamics that can be observed in all types of organisations and teams.

Applicants are expected to have an interest in psychoanalytic ideas and their application to the understanding of organisational dynamics. Applicants for Series B maybe involved in the management, training or development of other workers, or perhaps engaged in consultative work with organisations.
