NWIDP PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT SEMINAR

Innate Possibilities: Experiences of Hope in Child Psychotherapy

Simon Cregeen
Head of Child and Adolescent Psychotherapy, Manchester and Salford CAMHS

Saturday, 9 July 2011
9.30 am – 12.30 pm, St Thomas Centre, Ardwick, Manchester

This seminar is part of a series of professional development events aimed at increasing the understanding and application of psychoanalytic thinking.

This paper is a developing clinical hypothesis arising from work with child patients where moments of hope have been experienced. By 'hope' I do not mean a state of unfounded optimism or idealised phantasy. Rather, the paper refers to transient experiences where something new and unforeseen is encountered. These ideas draw on clinical material, and on concepts developed by Bion. The ideas may be of interest to both child and adult psychotherapists.

Simon Cregeen is Head of Child and Adolescent Psychotherapy in the CAMHS Directorate, Manchester and Salford CAMHS. He is also a Clinical Tutor on the child and adolescent psychotherapy clinical training for the North of England, based at the Northern School of Child and Adolescent Psychotherapy (NSCAP) in Leeds. He has a particular interest in work with Looked After Children, adoptive families, and their associated networks.
